Atlanta Garage Door Company Awarded Industry Humanitarian Award 2019

ATLANTA, March 28, 2019 (Newswire.com) - Each year the International Door Association recognizes individuals and companies who have served the association, and/or industry in an extraordinary way. During the past several years, hundreds have been acknowledged for their contributions.

The IDA depends extensively on recommendations by the membership as to who is deserving of being recognized. Be sure to attend and show your support for our industry's movers and shakers. The 2019 Humanitarian award was presented to Aaron Overhead Doors for their efforts on giving back to the community.

Aaron Overhead Doors Atlanta LLC was recognized on March 14 for their hardship program. Shortly after launching the company in July 2015, Owners Ryan & Stephenie Lucia enabled their employees to nominate homeowners who need "a break" to offer their services at a huge discount or even free. With a focus on single parents, veterans, and elderly, Ryan and Stephenie started the business to make money but have always believed giving is a core characteristic of successful businesses and people. The hearts of the technician is what leads to nominations. "What I didn't account for when we rolled this program out was how rewarding it was for my team. They take great pride in being able to help neighbors in need," Ryan said. Aaron Overhead Doors has performed many free garage door repairs and garage door and/or opener installations for free or at a heavy discount. They have received thank-you letters from homeowners with overwhelming stories about medical bills and hard times and how the gift of a free garage door means more than just the ability to get in and out of the garage; it provides hope. "This award means we're making a difference. I had at least 6 or 7 owners of garage door companies approach me after we won the award and said they are going to implement that program when they return. Wow! We haven't just helped a few people, we're now helping people all over the country," said Ryan.
